

Lots of 'faces' at BACA Winter Gallery opening

11/19/21

BRANFORD — At Wednesday night's Branford Arts & Cultural Alliance winter gallery grand opening, the faces depicted by Branford artist Barbara Fenton stared back at the 65 art enthusiasts crowding the former Denali on Main Street.

A former psychologist, Fenton said the faces "express the impact of my clients on me and my impact on them." The BACA gallery, she said, "is one of the most wonderful things that has happened in downtown Branford."

Said BACA president Frank Carrano, "we're elated that the gallery has brought in so many artists of so many genres, from photography to sculpture to

Lisa Resiman/ For Hearst Connecticut Media

Branford artist Barbara Fenton with BACA president Frank Carrano

jewelry, and that the public is showing such enthusiasm for their work."

The gallery, on 1004

Main Street, Branford, is open Wednesday through Saturday, 11 am to 5 pm. branfordarts.org.